Anna has been battling Chronic Lyme Disease for over 4 years. She went from a hardworking and dedicated flutist, to being so sick she can no longer go to school, pursue her career, or even play her beloved instrument. Her complicated, severe case of Lyme Disease has led Anna and her family to seek help from one of the best lyme doctors in the nation. Anna has been travelling to and from Washington, DC for the last four months and enduring harsh IV treatments that are necessary to rid her body of these devastating infections. She cannot work, drive, finish her undergrad, walk without a cane, or breathe properly. She is nearly bedridden and has lost most of her independence. But now she has hope. She has an incredible team of doctors in DC that are very experienced at handling cases like hers, and they have told her she can get better. We just don't know how long it will take, and the expenses for this type of treatment are huge.

"I am living in a body that is torturing me. We hope to afford the treatment necessary for me to reach healing. Please consider supporting me on this journey.
Thank you so much!" -Anna Roper
